

GRIMACE TO GRIN – how to reduce stress in the workplace!

Happy people are more resilient, have superior productivity, less burnout, less sick days and people want to be in their company. Does this sound like someone you would like on your team!

The problem is that many people are not happy and this unhappiness can readily turn a work environment toxic. A major concern of unhappiness in the workplace is stress and this stress is not just associated with work but life in general.

If you would like to build a non-toxic environment at your workplace and have your people less stressed then make sure you book in this presentation for your next staff training day.

This presentation will provide people with the following:

- An alternate definition of happiness
- How stress can erode happiness
- An understanding of what stress is and the harm it can do to the human body
- Practical ways to reduce stress that can be put into action immediately

How long: 30, 45 or 60 minutes

How to book : Call Claire Massingham on 0406 393 845 or email claire.e.massingham@gmail.com
