

OUTSMART THE ELEPHANT – How to Live a Healthy Life

Learn how to make health and fitness an everyday part of your life by getting your emotional and sometimes irrational right brain working in harmony with your factual, rational left brain.

This presentation will provide participants with some great practical tools on how to eat healthy and exercise on a regular basis.

Research has proven that people who are fit and healthy are more resilient, have superior productivity, less burnout, less sick days and people want to be in their company. Does this sound like someone you would like on your team!

This presentation will provide people with the following:

- Why exercise and eating healthy is crucial to happiness and success
- What sort of exercise should be incorporated into everyday life
- Why sitting down is a high risk activity
- What constitutes healthy eating
- Why is it so hard to exercise and eat healthy and how to move from knowing what to do, to actually doing it!

How long: 60 or 90 minutes

PRAISE

- What a valuable session Claire. I always knew what I should do but I just couldn't put it into action. Now I have some practical tools to help me. Can't wait to try them out – Debbie Haddock
- I loved the elephant and rider analogy. I could so relate to it and now I know what to do when the elephant comes charging in to sabotage my efforts – John Langley
- Thank you for such an inspiring and engaging talk. I didn't think I was going to hear anything new but how wrong I was. Everyone tells you what you should be doing but no one tells you how to do it. You hit the nail on the head and now I feel more equipped to give it another go – Siobhan Lester
